

ADVOCATES FOR ISRAEL
PRINCETON

You are cordially invited to a presentation on

"International Lawfare, BDS and the Delegitimization of Israel"

with

Professor Eugene Kontorovich

Are settlements a flagrant violation of international law? What does apartheid mean, and why is Israel increasingly accused of it? How are the principles Israel is accused of violating applied to other countries? Learn why international law plays such a large role in public arguments against Israel.

Sunday, February 12, 2012
6:30 – 8:30 pm

This event is being held at a private home in Princeton

Professor Kontorovich teaches at Northwestern University School of Law, where he specializes in constitutional and international law. He is currently a member of the Institute for Advanced Study's School of Social Sciences, where he is working on a book on international law for Harvard University Press. A leading expert on international criminal law and maritime piracy, he has advised lawyers in historic piracy trials around the world. He also regularly teaches law at Tel Aviv University.

His expertise is often sought out and quoted by major news organizations such as The New York Times, Wall Street Journal, NPR News, Associated Press, and the LA Times. In a previous career, he was a newspaperman at Wall Street Journal, the New York Post, and for many years at the Forward, where he reported from New York, Washington, Israel and Lebanon.

Professor Kontorovich is an internationally sought-after lecturer on the legal and historical aspects of the Israeli-Arab conflict at synagogues and to student groups at dozens of universities across the country, as well as the Israeli Military Advocate General's International Law Department, CAMERA, the AJC, and the Decalogue Society.
